china, which proves what a shrewd shopper she is, for all know the value of that imported ware. Just mnk, a $59.00 service of one hun dred pieces in the daintiest, thin, real Theodore Haviland French china, of noticeably smooth and flawless surface, in pure white ground, decorated prettily in delicate floral spray design and gold tipped handles, for only $54.69. This value is really and truly a find; it can not possibly be had elsewhere.

But just as this smart little housekeeper explained, china i only one of the many absolutely necessary things in daily life to be had on our fifth floor. Every conceivable household utility is greatly reduced in price.

These sales come only once a year, you know, and-"fourth floor, please"-for rugs will not be quoted at such low prices soon.

How she knows values! Walking directly to a pile of Wilton ruge she selected a $125.00 value, 9x12 feet square, in a conventional pattern of soft mulberry tones and only paid $98.75. The very best value to be had in town.

A taffeta dress can be classed a necessity, and that navy blue, made bouffant effect, with a touch of ecru embroidered georgette at the neck, and a Roman stripe Ottoman silk girdle, is a dream for simply $22.50. Now just see all three of these costumes may be had for only $91.50. The latest conceit in a voile waist is criss-cross tucks, and what could be more refreshing than that little all-white voile blouse, in peasant style, with the criss-cross tucks all on the bias, and the oval neck and short sleeves drawn up on a fine black ribbon? Its pretty simplicity is by no means all its charm, for its price is $5.85.

More and more one sees that the work of Madame Irene is not design, but destiny-and so one is naturally surprised to see those much coveted models in this sale. Just notice the broche-such excellent quality, but, of course, the fit and form is her undiscovered secret. The model of low bust, yet a little waist, embraces a sigh of delight and comfort. It is cut low in the back to comply with evening dress, and the short, flexible front stays make sitting a posture of ease. When it comes to the hips much can be said on both sides. Beauty is expressed in the length, and grace is aided by the elastic inserts. Beginning with lace and ribbon the whole ends in six ribbon decorated, dependable supporters. Oh, yes, one generally pays $24.00 for such marked form, but this time $18.00 is all that is needed.

$50.00 to be bought now for $32.50
